

From Paper to Precision

How a Steel Distributor
Transformed Its Delivery and Invoicing with Bill of Lading and Digital Signatures

Client Profile

Lyman Steel, a steel distributor committed to innovation, is transforming its core operations by digitizing delivery and invoicing workflows. The company is streamlining processes, reducing delays, and setting a new standard for operational excellence in a traditionally paper-driven industry.

The Challenge

The company's delivery lifecycle involved multiple handoffs and paper-based processes:

Manual Bill of Lading: Created, printed, and signed on paper

Signatures: Collected physically, returned for filing

Invoicing: Delayed pending paperwork review

The result?

- Same day invoicing
- Instant delivery proof
- Full deliver transparency

The Solution

Partnering with eMoksha, the distributor implemented a fully digital delivery-to-invoicing workflow:

Signatures: Captured via mobile/tablet

Real-time sync: Instant back-office updates

Invoicing: Triggered on delivery

This enabled same-day billing, faster customer responses, and full delivery transparency.

Before vs. After Snapshot

Before: Paper-Based Process

- Bill of Lading were handled manually
- Document return was slow
- Invoicing was delayed
- · Proof of delivery was hard to find

After: Digitally Connected Workflow

- Delivery prep is instant via ERP.
- Bill of Lading are auto-generated from orders.
- · Signatures are captured digitally.
- Signed Bill of Lading sync immediately with ERP.
- Invoices are triggered automatically the same day.
- Records are centralized and audit-ready.
